What You'll Learn

About this course

In Solving Problems Using the SPSS®: Examining a Hypothesis of Association training series, you will learn how to examine and solve a research problem. Using an example case, you will learn how to write and to test a hypothesis. The factors that need to be considered when choosing an appropriate statistical procedure to test the hypothesis will be reviewed, and a statistical procedure to test the hypothesis in the example case will be chosen. The steps for conducting the statistical procedure in SPSS will be performed. In addition, you will learn how to use SPSS output to make conclusions and write a results section to solve the research problem.
